RECREATION VEHICLE
INDUSTRY ASSOCIATION
RVIA

Each Kountry Aire meets all requirements of the RVIA — Recreational Vehicle Industry Association; the ANSI — American National Standards Institute; and state and federal codes.

Some features shown in the photographs are optional. Features and specifications are subject to change without prior notice.

Construction and floor plans

Kountry Aire know-how and the years of experience of its people have resulted in the manufacture of some of the best-built recreational vehicles available. Regular tours of the plant are conducted each week day. You may wish to come and see the Kountry Aire being built.

Sidewalls

Sidewall studs, 2 x 2 every 16", are reinforced by belt rails and further strengthened with steel straps, making a completely durable framework. Batts of 2" insulation cover every area. Wiring is extra heavy duty, with steel wiring sleeves in the studs, and meets all codes.

Inspection

A qualified inspector makes strict checks and tests of equipment throughout every unit before it's shipped to its destination. You're assured of being a satisfied owner of any Kountry Aire model you purchase.

Roof

A heavy plywood, center walkway and rear deck area are standard on a Kountry Aire. Rafters are heavy duty with 2 x 4 members every 16". Thick insulation gives a top blanket of comfort year around.
